Scholarships for Leave No Trace Master Educator courses are offered to applicants who demonstrate their ability to effectively reach large numbers of individuals with the Leave No Trace message. Strongest consideration will be given to applicants who have outdoor education teaching experience and have show a willingness to further their own leave No Trace training. Scholarship recipients are expected to conduct Leave No Trace Trainer courses and Awareness Workshops regularly, and to consistently report on such courses to the Center for Outdoor Ethics.

Due to limited resources, only partial scholarships are offered. In no case will the Center for Outdoor Ethics provide financial assistance that exceeds half of the course tuition (course tuition differs from one provider to the next in some cases).

Scholarship applications must:

- Be submitted with a cover letter and as least two letters of recommendation.
- Describe yourself and your organization (if applicable), the nature of your work, as well as recent achievements as they relate to the Center's mission.
- Address the specific need for Leave No Trace training within your area or organization.
- Describe how you intend to apply the Master Educator training and estimate the number of individuals you intend to reach with the Leave No Trace message.

Send completed applications to:
